INFECIAL TO THE EVENTED WORLDS

AUBURN, Aug. 2. - The game of hide-andseek between Charles F. Durston, Warden of Auburn Prison, and his men on the one side, and forty determined newspaper reporters on the other, is now fully under

Every member of the Warden's staff of officers has been cautioned to silence by Mr. Durston, and even the fair and cheerful Mrs. Duraton is discreetly silent about the miscrable brute, William Kemmier, whose helplessness touched the woman's heart. But all of those connected with the prison deny the story that Kemmler has weakened deny it so vigorously as to almost confirm the story.

Pastor Houghton and Old Daniel Me Naughton, of the death-watch, declare that Kemmler is only silent, not moody, and only contemplating his coming translation to a better world.

Two weeks ago Kemmler had a sick spell, and it was then that he "weakened."

Just before this Kemmler had a funny streak and added to his autograph, on the innumerable cards that he wrote, some rude drawings.

The subject that pleased him most was a view of his lawyer, Charles Hatch, of Buf falo, and the round, hairless bump of ven-

City Electrician Barnes, of Rochester, was here for a few hours yesterday and made a careful test of the electrical apparatus.

The clicking and tapping of the little hammer and other tools could be plannly heard by Kemmler in his cell, ten feet away, and the murderer showed more terror during that hour, than he has ever done before.

He tried to aboear unconcerned, whistled, hummed a smatch of a comic song and attempted to talk with Larry Donlan, his day watchman; but in the middle of a sentence his tongue would stop and he would listen.

It was the resumption of a torture that to a man of refined sensibilities would be horrible.

The efforts of MacNaughton and Mrs. Durston to educate kemmier during the fifteen months that he has lived like a caged bird in that little silent cell and its semidark corridor has developed a talent for sketching in Kemmier that, had it been rightly encouraged in routh, might have lifted him out of the slough in which his lot was cast.

It is pretty definitely settled that Deputy Coroner W. T. Jenkins, of New York, who has performed the autopay on every one of the cases of death on the wires in New York, will perform the autopay here. This is eminently proper, for Dr. Jenkins has made a hobby of electrical cases, and can give more to science from his experience, completed by autopay on the body of one freshly killed, than any other man.

A report reached New York this afternoon, founded on rumors concerning hemmler's condition, that the murderer has shown symptoms of insanity, brought about by the continued strain and worriment.

It is even suggested that Warden Durston, who was in Albany yesterday and is said to be in New York to-day, has spoken to Gov. Hill of the advisability of an inquiry as to Kemmler's state of mind.

In visw of these rumors and suggestions, the possible postponement of the electrocution, and even a final escape of the murderer from the extreme penalty is hinted at. Who the other eleven withesses will be warden Durston refuses to say.

The efforts of MacNaughton and Mrs. Durston to educate kemmier during the fifteen months that he has lived like a caged bird in that little select cell and its semi-dark corridor has developed a talent for selecting in Kemmier that, had it been richtly encouraged in youth, might has lot was cast.

While the lawyers were having their last fight for his life, Kemmier's religious fervor cooled perceptibly, and the sketches that he made were copies of Police Gazette pictures.

These he sent to Deputy Sheriff Veiling, of Eric County.

Warden Durston says he will extend no invitations to any newspaper man or news associat on, as such, but will himself name the witnesses, aides and experts who are to see the execution, without regard to the wishes of any one size.

The twenty-one invitations to witness the execution had not yet leen issued at noon to-day and Warden Durston expressed doubt as to whether he should issue them before Monday. In that case the execution conid not occur before Thursday.

Mr. Durston frets under the criticisms of the press, and gets consolation out of the fact that the papers differ between themselves, one criticising him for dodging last April in the work of execution, while another objects to his making a circus parade of such a solemn thing by gathering a crowl of experts here and keeping them on hand for days before he needs them.
